

search...

NEWS SEARCH

LOGIN

Username

Fish oil pills don't improve children's intellect

October 2 :39

Washington: There is some evidence that taking fish oil pills during pregnancy can help children's brain development. A study suggests that the supplements make no difference in measures of intellect when the children are six years old.

The findings in the American Journal of Clinical Nutrition support those of an earlier Norwegian study that also found no differences in IQ among seven-year-olds whose mothers did or did not take fish oil supplements while pregnant and breastfeeding.

Fatty acids such as omega-3 fatty acid (DHA) are found in fish and other foods considered to be important for the developing fetus. The question has been whether adding more of these fats to mothers' diets through supplements will further benefit the baby. The researchers did find that children of women who had high levels of DHA in their red blood cells around the time they gave birth scored above average on the intelligence tests at age six.

"We observed no significant effect of supplementation on the cognitive function of children whose mothers had high maternal DHA status may be related to later cognitive function in children," said Cristina Campoy at the University of Granada in Spain. In the study, the mothers with high DHA in their red blood cells were not necessarily given fish oil supplements -- rather, the result reflected their intake of DHA from various sources over a longer period of time. This could mean that long term fatty acid intake "is more beneficial than receiving supplementation alone during pregnancy," the researcher wrote.

REUTERS

0 tweets
tweet
Share

Subscribe In RSS Feeder

To Advertise on The Peninsula Website +97444557752 pr@pen.com.qa

Special COVERAGE

PDF DOWNLOADS

DOHA EVENTS 2011

DOHA EVENTS 2011. Includes images of a trophy and logos for various organizations.

QUICK LINKS

- Tenders
Advertisement Service
Global Economic Crisis Map
Photo Gallery
Special Coverage

Add this page to your favorite Social Bookmarking websites

More...

Add comment

Name (required)

E-mail (required)

Comment text area

1000 symbols left

Notify me of follow-up comments

Refresh

Refresh input field

Send

Comments